11 OPINION AND DECISION
12 AFTER RECONSIDERATION
13 (EN BANC)

14 On August 9, 2004, the Appeals Board granted reconsideration of the May 17, 2004 Findings and Award issued by the workers' compensation administrative law judge ("WCJ").

15 In the May 17, 2004 decision, it was found that Michael A. Willette ("applicant") sustained industrial injury to his low back and tailbone on October 13, 2003, while employed as an alarm installer by Au Electric Corporation, the insured of State Compensation Insurance Fund ("defendant"). In relevant part, it was further found that applicant will need further medical treatment to cure or relieve the effects of his injury, including the treatment jointly prescribed by his primary treating physician, Michael D. Butcher, M.D., and his secondary pain management physician, Hessam Noralahi, M.D., consisting of a TENS unit, water therapy, and acupuncture.

16 Moreover, at the May 12, 2004 trial preceding his decision, the WCJ determined that the utilization review reports of Roger Chappelka, M.D., are not admissible in evidence because they are not the reports of an examining or treating physician, they do not include the statutorily required declaration, and they are not signed.

17 In its petition for reconsideration, defendant contends in substance: (1) the utilization review reports of Dr. Chappelka should have been received in evidence consistent with the 1 utilization review process established by Labor Code section 4610;¹ (2) under section 4604.5(c), 2 in effect at the time of the May 12, 2004 trial and the May 17, 2004 decision, the American 3 College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine’s Occupational Medicine Practice 4 Guidelines (“ACOEM guidelines”) are presumptively correct on the issue of the extent and 5 scope of medical treatment; (3) Dr. Chappelka’s utilization review reports observe that the 6 ACOEM guidelines do not find acupuncture to be efficacious and do not recognize TENS units 7 to be an effective modality of treatment; and (4) even if Dr. Chappelka’s utilization review 8 reports are not admissible, the record contains no evidence from which the WCJ could conclude 9 either that the ACOEM guidelines support the treatment requested, that a variance from the 10 ACOEM guidelines is warranted, or that other evidence-based medical treatment guidelines 11 support the treatment requested.

12 Applicant, who is unrepresented, did not file an answer to defendant’s petition, however, 13 the WCJ prepared a Report and Recommendation on Petition for Reconsideration (“Report”) 14 recommending that the petition be denied.

15 Because of the important legal issues presented, and in order to secure uniformity of 16 decision in the future, the Chairman of the Appeals Board, upon a majority vote of its members, 17 has assigned this case to the Appeals Board as a whole for an en banc decision. (Lab. Code, 18 §115.)² Based on our review of the relevant statutory and case law, we hold:

19 (1) If an employer’s utilization review physician does not approve an employee’s 20 treating physician’s treatment authorization request in full, then an unrepresented 21 employee (if he or she desires to dispute the utilization review physician’s 22 determination) must timely object, and then a panel qualified medical examiner 23 (“QME”) must be obtained to resolve the disputed treatment issue(s);

26 ¹ All further statutory references are to Labor Code.

27 ² The Appeals Board’s en banc decisions are binding precedent on all Appeals Board panels and 28 WCJs. (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, §10341; Gee v. Workers’ Comp. Appeals Board (2002) 96 Cal.App.4th 1418, 1425, fn. 6 [67 Cal.Comp.Cases 236, 239, fn. 6].)

- 1 (2) Once the panel QME's evaluation has been obtained, neither the treating 2 physician nor the utilization review physician may issue any further reports 3 addressing the post-utilization review treatment dispute;
- 4 (3) The panel QME should ordinarily be provided with and consider both the 5 reports of the treating physician and the utilization review physician regarding the 6 disputed issues;
- 7 (4) If a post-utilization review medical treatment dispute goes to trial after the 8 panel QME issues his or her report, both the treating physician's and the 9 utilization review physician's reports are admissible in evidence; and
- 10 (5) When a WCJ or the Appeals Board issues a decision on a post-utilization 11 review medical treatment dispute, the reports of the panel QME, the treating 12 physician, and the utilization review physician will all be considered, but none of 13 them is necessarily determinative.

14 I. BACKGROUND

15 On December 15, 2003, applicant had an evaluation with defendant's QME in orthopedic 16 surgery, Duc M. Nguyen, M.D.³ Dr. Nguyen found that applicant had sustained an industrial 17 injury to his low back and tailbone on October 13, 2003; however, based on the evaluation, Dr, 18 Nguyen opined that applicant was permanent and stationary as of December 15, 2003, without 19 any permanent disability, although he said applicant would need six weeks of physical therapy.

20 After seeing Dr. Nguyen, applicant began treatment with Dr. Butcher, an orthopedic 21 surgeon. As part of applicant's treatment, Dr. Butcher referred him to Dr. Noralahi for pain 22 management. Eventually, Dr. Butcher and Dr. Noralahi prescribed a TENS unit, water therapy, 23 and acupuncture, among other treatment modalities.

24 Based on utilization review reports issued by Dr. Chappelka, defendant denied the 25 ³ It appears that this was an evaluation under former section 4060 to determine the compensability 26 of applicant's claim, before defendant had accepted liability for it. Of course, under former section 4060, 27 a QME was required to address all issues. (See, former Lab. Code, §4060(e) [repealed effective 4/19/04].) 28 Accordingly, after opining that applicant's injury was industrial, Dr. Nguyen also then addressed the question of medical treatment.

1 requests for a TENS unit, water therapy, and acupuncture. In essence, Dr. Chappelka's 2 utilization review reports concluded that applicant had been declared permanent and stationary 3 without any disability, that he is not in need of any further medical treatment at this time, that no 4 justification had been given for the requested treatment, and that, in any event, the requested 5 treatment did not fall within the ACOEM guidelines.

6 On April 14, 2004, applicant filed a declaration of readiness to proceed to an expedited 7 hearing on the issue of medical treatment.

8 The matter came on for an expedited hearing on May 12, 2004, at which the WCJ 9 excluded Dr. Chappelka's reports, largely because they are not the reports of an examining or 10 treating physician. Thereafter, the WCJ issued the May 17, 2004 decision allowing the treatment 11 prescribed by Drs. Butcher and Noralahi.

12 Applicant has not been represented by an attorney at any point in these proceedings.

13 II. DISCUSSION

14 We focus here on construing recently enacted or amended sections 4610, 4062, 4062.1, 15 and 4062.3 with respect to the procedures they establish for resolving post-utilization review 16 disputes regarding treatment prescribed by an unrepresented employee's physician(s). This 17 opinion is not intended to and does not address all of the myriad issues that surround the 18 utilization review process.

19 When the Appeals Board interprets workers' compensation statutes, its fundamental 20 objective is to determine the Legislature's intent so as to effectuate the purpose of the law.
21 (DuBois v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 5 Cal.4th 382, 387 [58 Cal.Comp.Cases 286]; 22 Nickelsberg v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1991) 54 Cal.3d 288, 294 [56 Cal.Comp.Cases 23 476]; Moyer v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1973) 10 Cal.3d 222, 230 [38 Cal.Comp.Cases 24 652].)

25 The best indicator of legislative intent is the clear, unambiguous, and plain meaning of 26 the statutory language. (DuBois v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd., supra, 5 Cal.4th at pp. 387-388; 27 Gaytan v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2003) 109 Cal.App.4th 200, 214 [68 Cal.Comp.Cases 28 693]; Boehm & Associates v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (Lopez) (1999) 76 Cal.App.4th 513,

1 516 [64 Cal.Comp.Cases 1350].) Thus, in interpreting statutory provisions, we will first look to 2 the express language of the statutes themselves. (DuBois v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd., supra, 3 5 Cal.4th at p. 387; Moyer v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd., supra, 10 Cal.3d at p. 230.) When 4 the statutory language is clear and unambiguous, the WCAB will enforce the statute according to 5 its plain terms. (DuBois v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd., supra, 5 Cal.4th at p. 387; Atlantic
6 Richfield Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (Arvizu) (1982) 31 Cal.3d 715, 726 [47
7 Cal.Comp.Cases 500].)

8 Additionally, however, a statute's words must be construed in the context both of the 9 entire statute and the entire statutory scheme, so that the language is harmonized both internally 10 and with related statutes, to the extent possible. (Chevron U.S.A., Inc. v. Workers' Comp.
11 Appeals Bd. (Steele) (1999) 19 Cal.4th 1182, 1194 [64 Cal.Comp.Cases 1]; DuBois v. Workers'
12 Comp. Appeals Bd., supra, 5 Cal.4th at pp. 387-388; Moyer v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd., 13 supra, 10 Cal.3d at pp. 230-231; Gee v. Workers' Compensation Appeals Bd. (2002) 96 14 Cal.App.4th 1418, 1427 [67 Cal.Comp.Cases 236]; American Psychometric Consultants, Inc. v.
15 Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (Hurtado) (1995) 36 Cal.App.4th 1626, 1639 [60 Cal.Comp.Cases 16 559].) Further, it is a principle of statutory construction that the word "shall," as used in the 17 Labor Code, ordinarily connotes a mandatory duty. (Lab. Code, §15 [“[s]hall’ is mandatory and 18 ‘may’ is permissive”]; see also, Smith v. Rae-Venter Law Group (2003) 29 Cal.4th 345, 357; 19 Jones v. Tracy School Dist. (1980) 27 Cal.3d 99, 109; Morris v. County of Marin (1977) 18 20 Cal.3d 901, 907.)

21 Here, applying these principles to sections 4610, 4062, 4062.1, and 4062.3, as they were 22 in effect at the time of the May 12, 2004 trial and the May 17, 2004 decision, we conclude the 23 following.

24 A. Where An Employer's Utilization Review Physician Does Not Approve A Treatment
25 Authorization Request In Full, Then An Unrepresented Employee Who Desires To Dispute
26 The Utilization Review Physician's Determination Must Timely Object And Then A Panel 27 OME Must Be Obtained To Report On The Dispute.

28 If an employer's utilization review physician denies, in whole or in part, the medical treatment requested or provided by the employee's treating physician, then an unrepresented

1 employee who disputes the utilization review physician’s determination must timely object to 2 that determination and, thereafter, a panel QME is required to be obtained to report on the 3 disputed treatment issue(s).⁴ This interpretation is consistent with the express language of 4 sections 4610, 4062, 4062.1, and 4062.3. Specifically, section 4610 states, in relevant part:

5 “If the [treating physician’s] request [for authorization of medical 6 treatment] is not approved in full, disputes shall be resolved in 7 accordance with Section 4062.” (Lab. Code, §4610(g)(3)(A) (emphasis added).)

8 and:

9 “If the insurer or self-insured employer disputes whether or not 10 one or more services offered concurrently with a utilization review 11 were medically necessary to cure and relieve, the dispute shall be 12 resolved pursuant to Section 4062.” (Lab. Code, §4610(g)(3)(B)
(emphasis added).)

13 In turn, section 4062 states, in relevant part:

14 “If the employee objects to a decision made pursuant to Section 15 4610 to modify, delay, or deny a treatment recommendation, the 16 employee shall notify the employer of the objection ... [and] [i]f 17 the employee is not represented by an attorney, the employer shall 18 immediately provide the employee with a form ... to request assignment of a panel of three [QMEs], [and] the evaluation shall be obtained as provided in Section 4062.1” (Lab. Code, §4062(a) (emphasis added).)⁵

19 Also, section 4062.1 provides, in relevant part:

20 “Within 10 days of the issuance of a panel of [QMEs], the 21 employee shall select a physician from the panel to prepare a 22 medical evaluation, the employee shall schedule the appointment, 23 and the employee shall inform the employer of the selection and the appointment.” (Lab. Code, §4062.1(c) (emphasis added).)

24 ⁴ Disputes regarding spinal surgery must be resolved under section 4062(b). (Lab. Code, 25 §4610(g)(3)(A); see also, §4062(a) & (b).)

26 ⁵ Section 4062(a) provides that, in general, the employee must notify the employer of the objection 27 in writing within 20 days of receipt of the decision to modify, delay, or deny a treatment 28 recommendation; however, these time limits may be extended for good cause or by mutual agreement.
(Lab. Code, §4062(a).)

2 and

3 “The unrepresented employee shall ... participate in the 4 evaluation.” (Lab. Code, §4062.1(d) (emphasis added).)

5 Further, section 4062.3 provides, in relevant part:

6 “Upon completing a determination of the disputed medical issue, 7 the [QME] ... shall serve the formal medical evaluation ... on the 8 employee and the employer.” (Lab. Code, §4062.3(i) (emphasis 9 added).)

10 Thus, because section 4610 states that disputes under that section “shall” be resolved in 11 accordance with section 4062, and because section 4062 states that, if the employee objects to a 12 decision made pursuant to section 4610 not to fully approve a treatment recommendation, the 13 employee “shall” notify the employer of the objection within specified time frames, then it is 14 incumbent on the employee to make a timely objection under 4062 to a utilization review 15 physician’s determination to disapprove, in whole or in part, the treating physician’s prescribed 16 treatment.⁶ Also, because section 4062(a) provides that a panel QME evaluation “shall” be 17 obtained, because sections 4062.1(c) and 4062.1(d) provide that the employee “shall” select a 18 panel QME, schedule the appointment, inform the employer of the selection, and participate in 19 the evaluation, and because section 4062.3(i) provides that the panel QME “shall” serve a report 20 that determines the disputed medical issue, then a panel QME report must be obtained whenever 21 an unrepresented employee timely disputes a utilization review determination regarding 22 treatment.

23 B. Once The Panel QME’s Evaluation Has Been Obtained, Neither The Treating Physician 24 Nor The Utilization Review Physician May Issue Any Further Reports Addressing The 25 Post-Utilization Review Treatment Dispute.

26 The panel QME’s evaluation is the only medical evaluation that may be obtained to 27 resolve any dispute regarding a utilization review physician’s determination not to fully approve 28

⁶ We recognize that neither section 4610(g)(3)(A) nor 4610(g)(3)(B) specifically addresses the issue of retrospective utilization review (i.e., section 4610(g)(3)(A) is concerned with both prospective and concurrent utilization review and section 4610(g)(3)(B) is concerned with only concurrent utilization review). Nevertheless, section 4062(a) makes it clear that the employee must object to any decision made under section 4610 to modify, delay, or deny a treatment recommendation.

1 a treating physician's treatment request; the treating physician and the utilization review 2 physician cannot issue supplemental reports or provide testimony, either at trial or by deposition, 3 in rebuttal to the panel QME's report. This interpretation is consistent with the language of 4 sections 4610 and 4062. Once more, section 4610 states, in relevant part:

5 "If the [treating physician's] request [for authorization of medical 6 treatment] is not approved in full, disputes shall be resolved in 7 accordance with Section 4062." (Lab. Code, §4610(g)(3)(A)
(emphasis added).)

8 and:

9 "If the insurer or self-insured employer disputes whether or not 10 one or more services offered concurrently with a utilization review
11 were medically necessary to cure and relieve, the dispute shall be 12 resolved pursuant to Section 4062." (Lab. Code, §4610(g)(3)(B)
(emphasis added).)

13 In turn, section 4062 states, in relevant part:

14 "If the employee objects to a decision made pursuant to Section 15 4610 ... , the employee shall notify the employer of the 16 objection If the employee is not represented by an attorney, 17 the employer shall immediately provide the employee with a form 18 prescribed by the medical director with which to request 19 assignment of a panel of three qualified medical evaluators, the 20 evaluation shall be obtained as provided in Section 4062.1, and no 21 other medical evaluation shall be obtained." (Lab. Code, §4062(a) 22 (emphasis added).)

23 Because the panel QME's evaluation is the only medical evaluation that "shall" be obtained to 24 resolve a dispute regarding a utilization review physician's determination not to fully approve a 25 treating physician's treatment request, then, once the panel QME's evaluation has been obtained, 26 the treater and the utilization review physician cannot comment further (i.e., they cannot do any 27 further "evaluation") on the post-utilization review dispute.

C. The Panel QME Should Ordinarily Be Provided With And Consider Both The Treating Physician's Reports And The Utilization Review Physician's Reports Relating To The

1 Disputed Issues.

2 When a panel QME assesses a post-utilization review dispute regarding a treatment
3 request, the panel QME should ordinarily be provided with and consider the treating physician’s 4 and the utilization review physician’s reports regarding the disputed issues, subject to the 5 limitation just discussed.⁷

6 This interpretation is consistent with section 4062.3, which provides that “[a]ny party 7 may provide to the ... [panel QME] any of the following information: (1) [r]ecords prepared or 8 maintained by the employee’s treating physician or physicians [and] (2) [m]edical and 9 nonmedical records relevant to determination of the medical issue.” (Lab. Code, §4062.3(a).) In 10 this regard, we conclude that a utilization review report is a “medical record” within the meaning 11 of section 4062.3(a)(2).

12 This interpretation is also consistent with the statutory scheme. If the panel QME is 13 going to make “a determination of the disputed medical issue” (Lab. Code, §4062.3(i); see also, 14 §4062.3(a)(2)), then clearly the QME must have the reports that created the medical treatment 15 dispute. (See also, Lab. Code, §4062.3 (the panel QME “shall identify ... [a]ll information relied 16 upon in the formulation of his or her opinion.”).)

17 Finally, this interpretation is consistent with the principles that “[a] medical report which 18 lacks a relevant factual basis cannot rise to a higher level than its own inadequate premises” 19 (Zemke v. Workmen’s Comp. Appeals Bd. (1968) 68 Cal.2d 794, 798 [33 Cal.Comp.Cases 358]), 20 that “[m]edical reports and opinions are not substantial evidence if they are ... based ... on 21 inadequate medical histories” (Heggin v. Workmen’s Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 4 Cal.3d 162, 22 169 [36 Cal.Comp.Cases 93]), and that “[t]he chief value of an expert’s testimony ... rests upon 23 the [m]aterial from which his opinion is fashioned and the [r]easoning by which he progresses 24 from his material to his conclusion; ... it does not lie in his mere expression of conclusion.”

26 ⁷ The panel QME ordinarily should also consider any relevant ACOEM guidelines (or, in the 27 future, treatment guidelines adopted by the Administrative Director of DWC under section 5307.27) 28 and/or any relevant other evidence-based medical treatment guidelines generally recognized by the national medical community and that are scientifically based. (Lab. Code, §4604.5(e); see also, §5703(h).)

1 (People v. Bassett (1968) 69 Cal.2d 122, 141, 144; see also, Owings v. Industrial Acc. Com.
2 (1948) 31 Cal.2d 689, 692 [13 Cal.Comp.Cases 80] [“the value of an expert’s opinion is 3 dependent upon its factual basis”].)

5 D. At Any Trial On A Post-Utilization Medical Treatment Dispute, Both The Treating 6 Physician’s Reports And The Utilization Review Physician’s Reports Are Admissible
7 Evidence.

8 If a post-utilization review medical treatment dispute goes to trial after the panel QME 9 issues his or her report, both the treating physician’s reports and the utilization review 10 physician’s reports are admissible evidence.

11 Of course, a treating physician’s reports are ordinarily admissible in evidence. (Lab.
12 Code, §5703(a).) And, in the context of a post-utilization review medical treatment dispute, the 13 treating physician’s reports are an essential element of the record in determining, for example:
14 the actual nature of the treating physician’s disputed treatment recommendation and the reasons 15 for it (see generally, e.g., Lab. Code, §§4610(a) & (e), 4062(a)); the timeliness of the defendant’s 16 utilization review (see generally, e.g., Lab. Code, §4610(g)); and whether the panel QME
17 considered all of the treating physician’s relevant reports. (Lab. Code, §4062.3(a) & (d).)

18 We also conclude that the reports of the utilization review physician are admissible. We 19 recognize, of course, that a utilization review physician is not an “attending or examining 20 physician” within the meaning of section 5703(a) and that the reports of non-21 attending/examining physicians are generally not admissible in workers’ compensation 22 proceedings, at least if their admission would be inconsistent with the statutory scheme.
23 (Sweeney v. Workmen’s Comp. Appeals Bd. (1968) 264 Cal.App.2d 296, 301-305 [33 24 Cal.Comp.Cases 404].) Further, we are aware that, in the past, it has been held that 25 utilization review physician reports are not admissible. (Czarnecki v. Golden Eagle Insurance 26 Co. (1998) 63 Cal.Comp.Cases 742 (significant panel decision).)

27 Yet, the situation in Czarnecki is readily distinguishable from that present here. When Czarnecki 28 issued, there was no statutorily-established utilization review process. Rather, there was merely statute directing the Administrative Director of DWC to adopt model utilization protocols (see

1 former, Lab. Code, §139(e)(8)) and an Administrative Director’s rule establishing a pilot 2 utilization review program. (See former Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, §9792.6.)⁸ Moreover, neither the 3 statutory provision nor the Administrative Director’s rule provided that the utilization review 4 physician’s opinion would be admissible for resolving medical treatment disputes. To the 5 contrary, DWC’s publication regarding the utilization review rule implicitly recognized the 6 continuing validity of former section 4062 for resolving medical treatment disputes. Thus, in 7 the absence of any statutory utilization review procedure, Czarnecki concluded that the rule 8 adopted by the Administrative Director could not be relied upon to circumvent or override the 9 then existing statutory procedure for resolving medical treatment disputes under former section 10 4062. Therefore, the utilization review reports were deemed inadmissible.

11 Now, however, there is a statutory scheme in place that specifically provides for 12 utilization review reports to assess the medical necessity of treating physician’s treatment 13 recommendations. (Lab. Code, §4610.) And, at any trial regarding a post-utilization review 14 treatment dispute, the utilization review physician’s report is relevant to determining: the reasons 15 for the decision regarding medical necessity (Lab. Code, §4610(g)(4), see also, e.g., §4610(e) & 16 (f)(2)); what procedures, information, and criteria the utilization review physician used (Lab.
17 Code, §4610(c), (d), & (f)); whether the utilization review decision was made by a person legally 18 competent to make it (Lab. Code, §4610(e)); whether the utilization review decision was timely 19 made and/or communicated (Lab. Code, §4610(g)); the nature of the disputed medical issue 20 (Lab. Code, §4062(a)); and whether the panel QME considered all of the utilization review 21 reports, i.e., whether the panel QME’s report constitutes substantial evidence. (Lab. Code, 22 §4062.3(a)(2).) Thus, the statutory scheme makes it clear that the utilization review report is an 23 essential part of /// 24 the record in determining a post-utilization review medical treatment dispute.⁹

25 ⁸ When the utilization review provisions of section 4610 went into effect, the Legislature repealed 26 Labor Code section 139 and, also, expressly repealed Administrative Director Rule 9792.6. (See, Stats.
2003, ch. 639, §§8, 49 [SB 228].)

27 ⁹ Because the utilization review reports are admissible under the statutory scheme, we are not 28 persuaded that they are made inadmissible under section 5703. Section 5703, which lists items that the

1 Moreover, when utilization review reports are offered in evidence, the reports are not 2 rendered inadmissible solely because they do not contain statements under penalty of perjury 3 that there has been no violation of section 139.3 and/or the information is true and correct. (See, 4 Lab. Code, §§5703(a)(2), 4628(j).) Because a utilization review physician is not referring the 5 applicant for treatment, the anti-self-referral provisions of section 139.3 are irrelevant and 6 inapplicable. Moreover, because a utilization review physician’s opinion is not a “medical-legal 7 report” within the meaning of section 4628, the declaration provisions of that statute are 8 inapplicable. Further, although medical reports “should” be signed (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, 9 §10606(o)), the failure to sign a report does not make it inadmissible. (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, 10 §10606.)

11 Thus, the overall statutory scheme contemplates the admission of utilization review 12 reports in evidence in proceedings relating to post-utilization review disputes.

13 E. When A Decision Is Rendered On A Post-Utilization Review Medical Treatment
14 Dispute, The Reports Of The Panel QME, The Treating Physician, And The Utilization 15 Review Physician Will All Be Considered, But None Of Them Is Necessarily Determinative.

16 When faced with differing medical opinions from the panel QME, the treating physician, 17 and the utilization review physician on the issue of whether prescribed treatment is reasonably 18 required to cure or relieve the effects of the employee’s injury, the WCJ or the Appeals Board 19 need not rely on the opinion of a particular physician. It is the WCAB, and not any individual 20 physician, which is the ultimate trier-of-fact on medical issues. (Klee v. Workers’ Comp. Appeals

9 F. Application Of These Principles To The Present Case

10 Here, following the post-utilization review dispute over applicant's entitlement to 11 medical treatment, the statutory procedure outlined above was not followed. That is, the dispute 12 was not resolved by going to a panel QME in accordance with the provisions of sections 4610, 13 4062(a), 4062.1, and 4062.3. Instead, the post-utilization review medical treatment dispute went 14 to trial and the WCJ attempted to resolve the dispute based on the opinions of the treating 15 physicians. Moreover, at trial, the WCJ erroneously excluded the utilization review physician's 16 reports. Accordingly, we will rescind the May 17, 2004 decision and remand this matter to the 17 WCJ for further proceedings and a new decision consistent with this opinion.

18 In rescinding and remanding, we recognize that the statutory procedure we have 19 discussed is relatively new and that no binding Appeals Board or Court of Appeal decision has 20 previously interpreted this procedure. Therefore, we will give the parties an opportunity to 21 comply with the procedure outlined here before they proceed to a new trial and before the WCJ 22 issues a new decision. That is, in view of the relative newness of the statutory procedure, we 23 will for purposes of this opinion forgive any failure to date to comply with the relevant statutory 24 deadlines and we will not now address any potential consequences of failures to comply with the 25 statutory timelines in the future.

26 On remand, therefore, defendant shall immediately provide applicant with the form 27 prescribed by the Medical Director of the Division of Workers' Compensation ("DWC") with 28 which to request a panel of three QMEs. (Lab. Code, §4062(a).) Upon receipt of the form,

1 applicant shall request a panel of three QMEs by submitting the form to the Medical Director or,
2 if applicant fails to submit the form within 10 days after defendant has both furnished him with it 3 and requested him to submit it, then defendant may submit the form to the Medical Director.
4 (Lab. Code, §4062.1(b).) The party submitting the request form shall designate the medical 5 specialty of the physicians that will be assigned to the panel. (Id.) Next, within ten days of the 6 issuance of the QME panel, applicant shall select a physician from the panel, he shall schedule 7 the appointment with that QME, and he shall inform defendant both of his selection and of the 8 appointment. (Lab. Code, §4062.1(c).) If applicant does not inform the employer of the QME 9 selection within ten days of the assignment of the panel of QMEs, then defendant may select the 10 panel QME. (Id.) If applicant informs defendant of the selection of the panel QME selection 11 within ten days of the assignment of the panel but he has not made the appointment, or if 12 defendant selects the panel QME, then defendant shall arrange the appointment. (Id.) Once the 13 appointment with the panel QME is made, the parties should provide the QME with the reports 14 of the treating physicians, the utilization review reports, and any other medical or nonmedical 15 records that they deem relevant. (Lab. Code, §4063.2(a).)¹⁰ Finally, applicant shall attend and 16 participate in the panel QME's evaluation (Lab. Code, §4062.1(d)), and the panel QME shall 17 serve both applicant and defendant with his or her report on the disputed medical issues. (Lab.
18 Code, §4062.3(i).)

19 Once this panel QME process is completed, applicant or defendant may bring the matter 20 on calendar before the WCJ by filing either a declaration of readiness to proceed (Cal. Code 21 Regs., tit. 8, §10410) or a declaration of readiness to proceed to an expedited hearing. (Cal. Code 22 Regs., tit. 8, §10415.)

23 Because we are rescinding the WCJ's decision and are remanding the matter to him so

24
25 ¹⁰ Generally, it is the defendant that will have the principal responsibility for transmitting the 26 treating physician reports and utilization review reports to the panel QME. Nevertheless, either party 27 may submit any relevant medical or nonmedical records to the QME. (Lab. Code, §4063.2(a).) However, 28 any information that a party proposes to provide to a panel QME shall be served on the opposing party at least 20 days in advance. (Lab. Code, §4063.2(b).) If the opposing party objects to the consideration of nonmedical records within ten days thereafter, the records shall not be provided to the panel QME (id.), unless a WCJ or the Appeals Board rules otherwise.

1 that the parties may comply with the statutory procedure, we will not now address any ACOEM 2 issues.

3 The panel QME should address any such issues in the first instance, and then the WCJ 4 should address the ACOEM issues at any new trial.
